Degenkolb Engineers is an employee-owned, internationally recognized firm with more than 65 years of experience and tradition. While we are banded together by common standards, Degenkolb is marked by a commitment to independence. Team members have the power and responsibility to direct their careers, professional interests, and talents to achieve their personal and professional goals. The firm is distinguished by its seismic expertise, the use of the latest analytical techniques, and regular employment of performance-based design principles.

We have immediate openings for structural engineers with imagination, creativity, and excitement for solving complex problems. For more information, visit www.degenkolb.com.
